WILLIAM DELOSS LOVE.

William DeLoss Love died in Hartford, Conn., April 8, 1918. He was born in New Haven, Conn., November 29, 1851. He was graduated from Hamilton College in 1873 with the degree of A.B., which was followed by that of A.M. in 1877, and Ph.D. in 1894. In 1878 he was graduated from Andover Theological Seminary. From 1878 to 1883 he held pastorates in Lancaster, Mass., and Keene, N. H., and in 1885 went to Hartford, where he was pastor of the Farmington Avenue Congregational Church until 1910. He was much interested in municipal affairs and from 1899 until his death was President of the Connecticut Humane Society. Doctor Love was always interested in history and wrote the "Colonial History of Hartford" in 1914, as stated in the preface, "To serve a patriotic purpose by helping her citizens to maintain a fellowship with the forefathers and by awakening in her children of foreign descent a loyal regard for her traditions." Among his other works were "Fast and Thanksgiving Days of New England," 1895, "Samson Occom and the Christian Indians in New England," 1900, and several monographs on New England history. He married first Ada M. Warren, July 6, 1878, who died in 1881. His second marriage was to Mary L. Hale, October 30, 1884, who, with four children, survives him. He was a member of the Connecticut Historical Society and its corresponding secretary. He was elected in 1894 to this Society, for which he prepared an obituary notice of Charles J. Hoadly in October, 1900; and a paper on the "Navigation of the Connecticut River," in April, 1903. He presented copies of his various historical writings to the Society, and made many gifts of scarce and early pamphlets to the Library.

CHARLES CARD SMITH.

Charles Card Smith was born in Boston, March 27, 1827, and died in that city, March 20, 1918. He was educated in private and public schools at Gloucester. He was secretary of the Boston Gas Light Company from 1853 to 1889, and treasurer of the American Unitarian Association from 1862 to 1871. Most of his long life was spent in historical writing and research. He wrote many biographical and historical articles for the North American Review, and from 1874 to 1884 was an editorial writer for the Boston Advertiser, devoting himself largely to historical subjects, especially in the centennial year. From 1877 to 1907 he was treasurer of the Massachusetts Historical Society, and for eighteen years was editor of its publications. He maintained that painstaking accuracy which is in accordance with the high standard of the Society's publications. He was a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and was elected a member of this Society in 1876. At the time of his death he was second in seniority of membership. He presented the following to the Proceedings of the Society: "Mistakes in Celebrating Bi-Centennial Anniversaries owing to change from Old Style and New," in October, 1876; "Review of Peters' General History of Connecticut," in October, 1877; "Financial Embarrassments of the New England Ministers in the Last Century," October, 1890; "Obituary of Robert C. Winthrop," April, 1895; "Obituary of William C. Endicott," October, 1900. He presented to the Society many volumes and at his death bequeathed a portion of his library. The honorary degree of A.M. was con-
